*Chapter 1*: John Phoenix Eats Toast

It was the end of another restless day of work at the Phoenix & Co. Law Offices. John Phoenix decided he was hungry because he had not eaten in a few hours and he was hungry.

It is for this very reason that John Phoenix now finds himself in the kitchen, and he put two slices of bread in the toaster and pressed the button to make it start toasting.

John Phoenix yawned and stretched and waited for five minutes.

Then he realized five minutes was abnormally long for toast to be ready so he checked the toaster again and found out it was unplugged!

"UNCLE PHOENIX DID YOU UNPLUG THE TOASTER?" yelled John Phoenix.

"I tripped over the cord I'm sorry John Phoenix," his uncle lowered his head in shame.

John Phoenix scoffed at his uncle's incompetence but he steadily plugged the toaster back in and tried again.

Minutes later, the toaster went "KACHUNK" and two white loaves of bread came out.

"Why are they still white?" John Phoenix shrieked in horror and then he noticed his uncle had also accidentally turned the heat on the toaster down!

John Phoenix turned the heat back up to normal and slammed the bread in again and this time he also put his uncle's head in there too so he'd learn a valuable lesson!

After two more long minutes, the toast was finally ready. John Phoenix excitedly opened the fridge to grab the butter... BUT THERE WAS NO BUTTER!

"What the shit! Where'd the butter go?" said John Phoenix.

"Oh right I ate it earlier," said Phoenix. "I'm really sorry John Phoenix."

"I am going to fire you for this Uncle! You will make up for these transgressions by taking me to the supermarket!"

So John Phoenix and Phoenix got in the car, but then they remembered Uncle Phoenix can't drive, so they had to form a new plan.

John Phoenix commanded his uncle get on all fours and so he did that. Then his nephew got on Phoenix's back and rode him all the way to the supermarket, and lots of people stopped to laugh and humiliate Uncle Phoenix which was well-deserved because he was the reason they had to do this in the first place.

Eventually they got to the supermarket and John Phoenix went to buy some butter.

But the butter aisle was empty too!

"Uncle Phoenix! Don't tell me you ate all the butter here too!" shouted John Phoenix.

"I couldn't have done that John Phoenix," said Phoenix. "If I did then the little beepy things at the exit would've gone off because they'd detect the butter in my stomach that I didn't pay for, and I couldn't have paid for all the butter because you don't give me enough pocket money!"

John Phoenix was alarmed that his uncle made an actually good point, but it was still possible that he robbed a bank or mugged people to get the money so he checked the shop's records and found that nobody bought any butter today! But the alarm also never went off meaning nobody tried to steal any either.

"But that's weird, where'd the butter go?" said the supermarket staff.

"Use your head sir," said John Phoenix. "If the butter didn't leave the supermarket then it must still be here! In other words, the thief ate the butter while he was still here and is still here now!"

Just then the alarm went off!

"OH SHIT!" shouted Dylan Fitchar! "You'll never make your toast John Phoenix!"

Dylan tried to escape but John Phoenix caught him and cut his stomach open and all the butter came out!

"Damn you John Phoenix!" Dylan Fitchar ran away!

"Good job catching the thief John Phoenix," said Uncle Phoenix (who was once again proving his stupidity because Dylan got away).

After that John Phoenix got some butter for free as a reward for solving the mystery and he went home to butter his toast.

But the toast was now cold so he had to make some more!

"OBJECTION!"
