Summary: John Phoenix has to figure out why Humpty Dumpty had his great fall!

*Chapter 1*: John Phoenix Meets Humpty Dumpty

John Phoenix was walking around the kingdom of Tudors. He was walking around this place because he appreciated its scenery. He was especially an appreciator of the brick wall surrounding the outskirts of the kingdom.

But while he was appreciating the wall, he noticed a strange, egg-shaped creature had planted his rear on top of it!

"What are you doing up there?" said John Phoenix.

"I'm Humpty Dumpty!"

"That's not what I asked stupid!"

"Oh I'm sitting on the wall."

"Why?"

"It's comfy."

"I see."

John Phoenix nodded in approval. It was clear to him that Dumpty, too, was an appreciator of the wall.

John Phoenix carried on until he heard a loud royalty-free glass shattering sound effect behind him!

"Oh Christ God Almighty I've been shattered to pieces!" shouted Dumpty. And then John Phoenix turned around! Dumpty wasn't lying. He'd fallen from the wall and shattered into pieces!

The king's men appeared!

"Have no fear, good citizens of Tudors, the king's men are here to help this poor fellow like the heroes we are!"

Everyone cheered, except John Phoenix, because something was suspicious about this.

However, he let the king's men do their work repairing Dumpty. But then the chief stood up.

"I declare Humpty Dumpty impossible to put back together again!"

"HOLD IT!" shouted John Phoenix. "Are you sure it's so impossible?"

"Of course, we've tried everything and it's impossible. Even the horses agree!" said the chief and the horses neighed (who also couldn't put Dumpty together again).

"Well I have an OBJECTION!" shouted John Phoenix. And then he presented the chief's super glue. "This glue can put anything together but you haven't even used any of poor Dumpty! Why?"

"A-Ah, that's empty," said the chief. But John Phoenix squeezed it and glue came out!

"This ain't it, Chief. You're lying! You didn't even TRY to put Humpty Dumpty together again!"

The chief cried out and got on his hands and knees!

"I'm sorry! The truth is we were sent by the king to assassinate Humpty Dumpty please oh God spare meeee!"

And John Phoenix DID spare him! Because he's merciful. But who he was not merciful towards was the king! He marched straight to the castle and fought past all of his minions and sliced the pig's head off!

The king had been checkmated and Tudors had been rid of its evil monarch for good!

The End!
