Summary: John Phoenix goes up the hill to fetch a pail of water but will all go according to plan when someone's out to stop him?

Chapter 1*: John Phoenix Meets Jack and Jill

John Phoenix was out on a walk in the countryside with his Uncle Phoenix. John Phoenix likes nature and so does Uncle Phoenix. It is one of the few things they agree on, along with "John Phoenix is the best," and "murderers are usually bad."

Soon they found themselves at the foot of a hill and a boy and a girl were prancing toward it happily.

"Hello John Phoenix!" shouted the boy who is named Jack.

"We're going to fetch a pail of water!" said the girl who is named Jill.

"Do you think I'm impressed by that?" John Phoenix yawned. It was obvious they were simply attention-seekers. He paid them no mind. He continued walking but stopped when he heard a shriek in pain!

John Phoenix spun around! And there he saw Jack and Jill falling down and tumbling down the hill! It actually looked pretty funny. John Phoenix cackled so hard he fell on his back and started rolling down the hill himself!

But Jack and Jill were not laughing. They were crying because they were babies. But they were hurt, that much was clear.

"John Phoenix, maybe we should fetch a pail of water for them," said Uncle Phoenix. "If we do not they might die of thirst."

John Phoenix was not particularly interested in this idea but he decided it would be no challenge to him so he might as well help.

John Phoenix picked up Jack's bucket and went up the hill where the well was.

"Okay John Phoenix let's put the water in the bucket," said Phoenix.

"Objection, there is no water in the well!" said John Phoenix.

"Oh, that must be because you put it in the bucket already," said Phoenix.

"That's impossible. Why? Take that! The bucket is empty too!"

"Oh wow..." said Phoenix. "Where did the water go John Phoenix?"

John Phoenix looked down into the pitch black darkness of the well.

"Uncle, in order to solve this mystery, we must overcome our fears. Or rather, you must overcome your fears, for I am not scared."

"Scared of what John Phoenix?"

"Scared of the dark!"

Then John Phoenix grabbed his uncle by the neck and pushed him down the well! He then leaned over the well and put his hand to his ear for a minute until he heard a thud!

"There's something down here John Phoenix!" shouted the uncle.

"I see, so it is not bottomless," said John Phoenix. Then he jumped into the well himself.

At the bottom of the well, there was a slope that the water was flowing down, and it did not look natural.

"Well, now, what's this tunnel doing in the well?" said John Phoenix.

"Haha, "well",," Phoenix laughed at John Phoenix's funny choice of words.

John Phoenix had no time for this though. He followed the stream of water until he reached a cave and the water was waterfalling into a giant container.

"Ho ho good job stealing all the water from this town we don't like Durano," said Kuraudo Ooishi.

"Yeah dad now all those stupid jerks are going to shrivel up and die like they deserve," said Dylan.

"Objection no they won't!" shouted John Phoenix.

"Ahhh it's John Phoenix run!" said Ooishi and he tried to pick up the vat of water but it was too heavy and he fell on his ass.

Dylan Fitchar and his father ran away and John Phoenix picked up the water and brought it back to the well and Jack and Jill finally got their pail of water.

The End!
