Summary: The US rises up into the sky can John Phoenix solve a murder up there?

Chapter 1*: John Phoenix Turnabout Levitation

A terrible tremor tremorred around the city of Los Angeles one morning!

"Waaah!" Phoenix Wright rolled out of bed and fell on his face.

"Uncle, get up!" John Phoenix was unfazed by the shaking of the ground.

John Phoenix looked out his window to see what was happening. This was no simple earthquake: the land was being uprooted and flying away into the sky!

"How could this have happened... and why?" said John Phoenix.

John Phoenix went outside and turned on his phone to look at a map of the world, the map said that all of the US was in the sky now except for one small patch of land in the middle of Arizona.

Then Dick Gumshoe appeared!

"Hey pal there's been an accident in Arizona!"

John Phoenix and Gumshoe went to Arizona and they arrived at the place that wasn't in the sky. John Phoenix looked over the edge and saw a man down below. The police tied a rope around the corpse and dragged it up.

"HE FELL DOWN AND HIT HIS HEAD SIIIIIR!" shouted Mike Meekins.

"Yes he fell really far," said the coroner.

"Well pal he must've fallen when the country rose into the sky," said Gumshoe.

But then John Phoenix noticed the body was dripping wet.

"OBJECTION!" shouted John Phoenix. "The body is absolutely soaked, but how is that possible! There's no bodies of water in Arizona!"

"Then how do ya think he died pal?" said Gumshoe.

"It's obvious. He must have been pushed into a body of water! Then the culprit took his body and decided to disguise his death as an accident so he rose the US into the sky and left the body here so it looked like he fell off!" said John Phoenix. "Now confess... DYLAN FITCHAR!"

"YAH!"

Dylan Fitchar ran away and the US fell back into the sea.

THE END!
