*Chapter 1*: Arsène Lupin VS Ryunosuke Naruhodo

Ryunosuke climbed out of bed one morning and stretched and yawned for he had just woken up this fine day in 1900. There was a strange sound coming from his stomach, that means he was hungry, so he'd have to eat breakfast or else he would starve and die.

He went downstairs to the room belonging to Herlock Sholmes where he usually eats with him, Susato and Iris. Unusually, he wasn't greeted to the smell of Iris' cooking, for she was not making breakfast yet. Iris was sitting on the couch, staring at the fridge with a sullen look on her face.

Curious, Ryunosuke opened the fridge and found it was empty! Empty, except for a scrap of notepaper on the door.

"To the residents of 123 Whatever Street, I have stolen your breakfast and now you shall have nothing to eat!

Sincerely, the gentleman thief, Arsène Lupin!

"Grrrrgh!" rumbled Ryunosuke's stomach. If he didn't get his breakfast back, his entire family would starve! He would not let that happen!

Ryunosuke pulled out a magnifying glass and held it over the floor. He found some crumbs from the food Iris was going to cook, they must have been dropped by Lupin as he was running away.

Ryunosuke and Iris followed the trail of crumbs like they were Hansel and Gretel and it took them to a little shack deep in the forest.

Ryunosuke broke the door down and ran in.

"INTRUDERS!" shouted Lupin. "Wait, how did you find my hideout?"

Lupin grabbed a knife and ran at Ryunosuke, but his opponent had a katana. Lupin's knife was no match for Ryunosuke's sword so he was swiftly defeated.

Ryunosuke got the food back and he had a nice healthy breakfast with Susato, Sholmes, Iris and John Phoenix, the end!
